“These lawmakers have been staunch allies to Alabama, Florida, and Georgia credit unions and their more than 12 million members throughout the Southeast,” said Samantha Beeler, President of LSCU. “We take great pride in standing behind these esteemed candidates whose support fortifies the foundation of credit unions in our communities. We look forward to continued work with them on critical issues that matter most to the credit union industry.”

With these endorsements, LSCU will provide these candidates with financial and grassroots support. Ahead of elections, credit unions and their members will have various opportunities to engage with the candidates throughout the coming months.

“These members understand the unique challenges facing credit unions and work diligently to ensure our voices are heard and represented throughout the echo chambers of Congress. As small businesses wholly committed to helping consumers achieve their own American Dream, we appreciate Congress’ work to protect and enhance the operating environment for credit unions,” stated Grace Newcombe, Vice President of Federal Advocacy and Communications.
